The diagram consists of three separate symbols. From left to right: 1) A circle divided horizontally, with the top half white and the bottom half black. Below it is the text '南側道路' (Nanseite Dōro). 2) A diamond shape divided diagonally, with the top-left triangle black and the other three triangles white. Below it is the text '沿い' (Anai). 3) A rectangle divided vertically, with the left side hatched and the right side white. Below it is the text '域' (Eki).
